

Student to Professional Women in STEM Careers

Free One-day Workshop: STEM Graduates and Undergraduates

Do you ask yourself 'What next?'

Make informed career choices in Science & Engineering

Understand academic and industry opportunities

Get involved in your transition from school to beyond

Come share your experiences, insights, questions, and answers with us!

Separate sessions for undergrads and grads!

Image credit: flickr.com/photos/sayamindu/5676724071

Dr. Kerry McGuire

Dr. McGuire is a Space Human Factors Engineer at NASA. She received her MS and PhD at the University of Wisconsin-Madison in 2011.

Dr. A. Joy Rivera Rodriguez

Dr. Rivera Rodriguez is Assistant Professor in Industrial Engineering at Clemson University. She graduated in 2011 with her BS, MS, and PhD from the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

November 9, 2012; 1:30-5:30pm
Union South, see TITU for details

For more information and agenda, visit: win.wisc.edu/organization/hfes

Or to reserve your spot, email: hfes@studentorg.wisc.edu

Presented by the Human Factors & Ergonomics Society student chapter, and the Women in Science & Engineering Leadership Institute.

