

Forms and Guidelines for Using Trademarks and Copyrighted Material WISELI: Women in Science and Engineering Leadership Institute®

In order to foster and advance women and minorities in academia, WISELI: Women in Science and Engineering Leadership Institute® is firmly committed to broadly disseminating our materials and workshops to other academic institutions. Simultaneously, we are committed to protecting the reputation of our materials and to ensuring their appropriate use.

Consequently, we require anyone wishing to use our copyrighted materials to submit a request detailing how the materials will be used to wiseli@engr.wisc.edu. Please sign the request form, initial the “Terms and Conditions” pages, and return the form to WISELI by mail, fax, or as a scanned email attachment.

If your request is approved and you agree to the terms and conditions listed below, WISELI will grant you non-transferable, non-exclusive permission to use copyrighted material. (For academic institutions requesting use for educational purposes, this permission will usually be granted royalty-free.)

WISELI reserves the right to terminate or modify your permission for use and to take action against any use that does not conform to these terms and conditions, infringes on our intellectual property or other rights, or violates applicable law.

TERMS and CONDITIONS for Copyrighted Material:

- If you plan to create your own document (guidebook, brochure, handout, etc) that incorporates substantial portions of our document/s, we will consider providing permission based on the extent to which our material is incorporated. In such cases, we will request the following:
  - Your document’s design or format should clearly indicate what material is copied or paraphrased from WISELI’s documents and distinguish that content from your original content.
  - Documents that contain substantial content from WISELI’s materials should not be posted on public websites or social media.
  - Your document should include language acknowledging WISELI’s content. A suggested attribution is provided below:
 This handbook/guidebook/booklet/handout/document \(your choice\) is reproduced and adapted with permission from WISELI: Women in Science and Engineering Leadership Institute® at the University of Wisconsin – Madison. It is based on the following publication/s: (Please see list of publications below and use the following format: Author/s. Title. Copyright © Date by WISELI and the Board of Regents of the University of Wisconsin System.)

- If the material you wish to incorporate is deemed too extensive to receive permission to incorporate into the document you wish to produce (e.g., it paraphrases or includes verbatim most of an entire brochure, or most of an entire chapter), we may provide permission for you to print copies of a brochure or portions of a guidebook and disseminate them to members of your institution. In such cases, we will request the following:
  - Any electronic versions of WISELI’s content should not be posted on public websites or social media.
  - Appropriate notification that you have received permission to copy the document. Suggested language for this notification is provided below:
 Permission to reproduce this brochure has been provided by WISELI to [Name of Institution]. Please do not copy, distribute further, or post on public websites or social media.
 Or,
 Permission to reproduce [page numbers/chapter title] of the guidebook [Guidebook Title] has been provided by WISELI to [Name of Institution]. Please do not copy, distribute further, or post on public websites or social media.

- If you are offering a workshop/s based on our copyrighted materials, please do not use “Searching for Excellence and Diversity” and “Breaking the Bias Habit”* as titles for your workshop as these titles are trademarked (please see note on use of trademarks, below). Please include the following text in a footnote on both the agenda and announcement:

(initial)_____

This workshop is based on and adapted from a workshop developed by WISELI: Women in Science & Engineering Leadership Institute.®

Or,

This workshop is based on and adapted from “Searching for Excellence & Diversity”® a workshop developed by WISELI: Women in Science & Engineering Leadership Institute.®

- If the material you plan to incorporate is not nearly as extensive as described above, and you are simply quoting or paraphrasing a sentence or two, a simple citation to the appropriate document will suffice.
- If you would like to post one of the brochures that is available on our website, we ask that you link to the document on our website instead.
- If you envision using our material in some other manner, please use the request form to explain your intended use, rely on the examples suggested above as a guideline to develop appropriate attribution text, and submit the request to WISELI at wiseli@engr.wisc.edu. We will consider providing permission or suggest changes.
- If you receive requests from other institutions to use/reproduce/adapt material you based on WISELI’s publications, please forward them to WISELI at wiseli@engr.wisc.edu

IMPORTANT NOTE ON USE OF TRADEMARKS:

WISELI holds the following trademarks:

- Searching for Excellence and Diversity®
- WISELI: Women in Science and Engineering Leadership Institute®
- Breaking the Bias Habit®

Because we hold these trademarks, we ask that you do not use them as titles for any workshops or documents you develop.* Please use these trademarks only when crediting WISELI for our contributions as indicated in the examples above. When using the trademarks, please adhere to the following guidelines:

- Distinguish the trademark from the surrounding text in some manner by capitalizing or italicizing the entire mark, placing the mark in quotes, or using a different type style or font.
- Follow the trademark with the symbol ® to identify the term as a registered trademark.

*If you purchased the Breaking the Bias Habit® Toolkit, your purchase includes the rights to use the trademarked title but the guidelines provided above still apply.
